

AP Associated Press

Wed Sep 17, 9:51 PM ET

Prev 18 of 729 Next

A woman waits with two children for a medical examination in a shelter in Gonaives, Haiti, Wednesday, Sept. 17, 2008. Long after the floodwaters from three hurricanes and a tropical storm have receded from Haiti's mud-caked streets, new bodies are still showing up every day, officials said Wednesday.

(AP Photo/Ariana Cubillos)

AP Associated Press

Wed Sep 17, 9:18 PM ET

Prev 20 of 729 Next

Chalin Sejour, 28, sits in front of her destroyed house with her belongs covered in mud in Gonaives, Haiti, Wednesday, Sept. 17, 2008. Long after the floodwaters from three hurricanes and a tropical storm have receded from Haiti's mud-caked streets, new bodies are still showing up every day, officials said Wednesday.

(AP Photo/Ariana Cubillos)

AP Associated Press

Wed Sep 17, 9:13 PM ET

Prev 22 of 729 Next

A woman bathes herself in a street of a neighborhood that was destroyed by floods in Gonaives, Haiti, Wednesday, Sept. 17, 2008. Long after the floodwaters from three hurricanes and a tropical storm have receded from Haiti's mud-caked streets, new bodies are still showing up every day, officials said Wednesday. 800,000 Haitians are in need of aid.

AP Associated Press

Wed Sep 17, 9:01 PM ET

Prev 23 of 729 Next

A woman walks through a neighborhood destroyed by floods in Gonaives, Haiti, Wednesday, Sept. 17, 2008. Long after the floodwaters from three hurricanes and a tropical storm have receded from Haiti's mud-caked streets, new bodies are still showing up every day, officials said Wednesday. 800,000 Haitians are in need of aid.

Sun Sep 7, 12:14 PM ET
Prev 372 of 729 Next

An aerial view of a flooded Gonaives, Haiti after the passing of Tropical Storm Hanna. After ravaging the Turks and Caicos Islands, Hurricane Ike headed toward the Bahamas, Cuba and the US Gulf Coast, as Tropical Storm Hanna continued to batter the US East Coast.

Sat Sep 6, 10:11 PM ET
Prev 395 of 729 Next

A woman makes her way through a flooded street in Gonaives after the passing of Tropical Storm Hanna. More than 500 people were found dead in Haiti as international aid trickled Saturday to desperate residents who have not eaten in days since the latest in a battery of severe storms crushed the country, and yet another storm posed a grave threat.

AP Associated Press

Sat Sep 6, 8:25 PM ET

Prev 414 of 729 Next

A woman wades through muddy flood waters after Tropical Storm Hanna hit the area in Gonaives, Saturday, Sept. 6, 2008. Hanna has killed 166 people in Haiti.

AFP

Sat Sep 6, 12:11 AM ET

Prev 511 of 729 Next

An aerial view of Gonaives, Haiti, after the passing of Tropical Storm Hanna. Hanna closed in on the US east coast on the verge of hurricane strength after leaving 163 dead in Haiti, as a more powerful Hurricane Ike threatened Caribbean islands and the United States.

Fri Sep 5, 9:43 PM ET
Prev 525 of 729 Next

An aerial view on September 5 of Gonaives after the passing of Tropical Storm Hanna. The European Commission launched "fast-track" aid action for Haiti, after the storm-hit Caribbean island appealed for international help.

Fri Sep 5, 9:43 PM ET
Prev 526 of 729 Next

An aerial view shows flooding caused by Tropical Storm Hanna in Gonaives, Haiti September 3, 2008.

Fri Sep 5, 9:19 PM ET
Prev 528 of 729 Next

An aerial view of floods caused by Tropical Storm Hanna is seen in Gonaives in this September 3, 2008 file photo. Haitian police found 495 corpses when muddy floodwaters began to recede on Friday from the port city of Gonaives